Nor was Mrs. Tanberry's prediction allowed to go unfulfilled regarding the advent of those persons whom she had designated as vagabonds. It may have been out of deference to Mr. Carewe's sense of decorum or from a cautious regard of what he was liable to do when he considered that some outraged the rights of honor had placed themselves under the severe restraint of allowing three days to elapse after their introduction to Miss Carewe before they "paid their respects at the house," but, be that as it may, the dictator was now safely under way down the Rotten river, and Mrs. Tanberry reigned in his stead. Thus, at about 8 o'clock that evening, the two ladies sat in the library engaged in conversation, though, for the sake of accuracy, it should be said that Mrs. Tanberry was engaged in conversation, Miss Betty in giving ear, when their attention was arrested by sounds of a somewhat mistreated nature from the lawn, which sounds were immediately identified as emanating from a time and violin.

Mrs. Tanberry bounded across the room like a public building caught by a cyclone, and, dashing at the candles, "Blow 'em out, blow 'em out!" she exclaimed, snuffing the action to the word in a flutter of excitement.

"Why?" asked Miss Carewe, startled, as she rose to her feet. The candles were out before the question.

"Why?" repeated the merry, husky voice in the darkness. "My goodness, child, how long have those vagabonds been here? To think of your never having been serenaded before!"

She drew the girl to the window and pointed to a group of dim figures near the blue bushes. "The dear, delightful vagabonds!" she chuckled. "I know they'll come! It's the beautiful Tap-pachung Marsh with his fiddle and young Jeff Barwood with his drum and George Madrilion and little Frank Chenoweth and this little 'Cummings' to sing.
Hark to the music!"

It is perfectly truthful to say that the violin and fiddle executed the prelude, and then the trio sounded full on the evening air, the more effective elements of the group being as long as the breath in the singers could hold them in order to allow the two fiddlers complete command of the harmony. They sang "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls" and followed it with "Long Long Ago."

"That," Mrs. Tanberry whispered between stifled gasps of almost uncontrollable laughter, "is meant for just one."

"Tell me the tales that to me were so dear," entreated the trio.

"I told 'em plenty," chuckled the entering voice, "and I expect between us we can get up some more."

"Now, you are come my grief is removed," they sang.

"They mean your father is on his way to St. Louis," remarked Mrs. Tan-berry.

"Let me forget that so long you have revelled, let me believe that you love as you loved Long, long ago, long ago."

"Appled, appled!" whispered Mrs.
Tanberry, concentrating the minstrel by a hearty clapping of hands.

Then the candles were relit and the serenaders invited within. Nelson came bearing cake and wine, and the house was made merry. Presently the group, Virginia Barwood, making her appearance on the arm of General Barwood, Mrs. Tanberry led them all in a hearty game of blind man's buff, followed by a hearty dancing of Dan Tucker.
After that, a quadrille being proposed, Mrs. Tanberry suggested that Jefferson should run home and bring Fanchion for the fourth lady. However, Virginia explained that she had endeavored to persuade both her sister and Mr. Gray to accompany the General, but that Mr. Gray had complained of indigestion, having suffered greatly from headache on account of inhaling so much smoke at the warehouse fire, and, of course, Fanchion would not leave him. (Miss Carewe permitted herself the slightest shrug of the shoulders.)

So they danced the quadrille with Jefferson at the piano and Mr. Marsh performing in the character of a lady, a proceeding most unacceptable to the general, whom Mrs. Tanberry forced to be his partner. And thus the evening passed gayly away. Tappachung Marsh spoke the truth, indeed, when he exclaimed in parting, "Oh, rare Mrs.
Tanberry!"

But the house had not done with serenades that night. The guests had long since departed; the windows were still and dark under the wan old moon, which had risen lamely, looking unfamiliar and not half itself; the air bore an odor of lateness, and nothing moved, when a delicate harmony stole out of the shadows beyond the misty garden. Low but resonant chords sounded on the heavier strings of a guitar, while above them, upon the lighter wires, rippled a slender, tinkling melody that wooed the slumberer to a delicious half wakefulness as dreamily, as tenderly as the croon of rain on the roof soothes a child to sleep. Under the artist's cunning touch the instrument was both the accompaniment and the song, and Miss Betty, at first taking the music to be a wandering thread in the fabric of her own bright dreams, delight to be near her. For that matter, it is said that no one ever had enough of the mere looking at her. Also, her talk was captivating even to the lively, being spiced with surprising turns and unusually seasoned with the art of language. To use the phrase of the time, she possessed the accomplishments, an anticipated charm now on the point of disappearing, so carefully has it been shut under whenever exhibited.

She stretched magnificently. This is the very strongest support for the assertion. Frank Chenoweth and Tap-pachung Marsh agreed, with tears of enthusiasm, that "magnificently" was the only word. They came to this conclusion as they sat together at the end of a long dinner, at which very little had been eaten, after a day's picnic by the river. Miss Carewe had been of their company, and Tappachung and Chenoweth found each his opportunity in the afternoon. The party was small and to one had been able to effect a total unconsciousness of the maneuvers of the two gentlemen. Even Fanchion Barwood comprehended indignantly, though she was more blundered than ever, and her faraway eyes belied the mechanical vivacity of her manner, for Crailley was thirty miles down the river with a fishing rod neatly packed in a leather case.

Mr. Vanrevel, of course, was not included. No one would have thought of asking him to join a small party of which Robert Carewe's daughter was to be a member, but it was happiness enough for him that night to lie in the shrubbery looking up at the stars between the leaves while he listened to her harp and borne through the open window on enchanted airs the voice of Elizabeth Carewe singing "Robin Adair."

It was now that the town indulged its liveliest spirit. Never an evening lacked its jingling, while the happy folk of Itom set the early summer to music. Serenade, dance and song for them, the light boys, young and old making gay together. It was all laughter, either in sunshine or by candlight, undisturbed by the far thunder below "the southern horizon, where Zachary Taylor had pitched his tent, upon the Rio Grande."

One fine evening soon after that excursion which had proved fatal to the lapses of the handsome "Tappachung Marsh" and of the youthful Chenoweth it was the privilege of Mr. Thomas Vanrevel to assist Miss Carewe and her daughter from their carriage as they drove up to a dance at the Barwood's. This good fortune fell only to great deserving, for he had spent an hour lurking outside the house in the hope of performing such offices for them.

Heaven was in his soul, and the breath departed out of his body when, after a moment of hesitation, Miss Betty's little lace-gloved hand was placed in his hand, and her white slipper shimmered out from the blue bosom of her dress to fall like a heu-sation, he thought, on each of the carriage steps.

It was the age of garlands. They wreathed the muses, the seasons and their speech, so the women wore wreaths in their hair, and Miss Betty's that night was of unguessed. "Lead your fortune in them all," whispered Tom's heart, "and of whomsoever you wish to learn every petal will say, 'The loves you, none declare loves you not!'"

She looked slightly, but did not speak to him, which was perhaps a better reception than that accorded the young man by her companion. "Oh, it's you, is it?" was Mrs. Tanberry's consideration as she counted the vehicle in her descent. She looked sharply at Miss Betty, and even the small glow of the carriage lamps showed that the girl's cheeks had flushed very red. Mr. Van-revel, on the contrary, was pale.

They stood for a moment in awkward silence, while from the lighted house came the waltz, "I Dreamt That I Dwelt In Ma-hur-le Halls." Tom's own dreams were much wilder than the gypsy girl's, he knew that, yet he spoke out bravely:

"Will you dance the first two with me?"

Miss Betty bit her lip, frowned, turned away and, countenancing no reply, walked toward the house with her eyes fixed on the ground; but just as they reached the door she flushed over him a look that scorched him from head to foot and sent his spits down through the soles of his boots to excavate a grotto in the depths of the earth, so charged it was with wrathful ply and contempt.

"Yes!" she said abruptly and followed Mrs. Tanberry to the dressing room.

The elder lady shook her head solemnly as she emerged from the entrance of a yellow silk cloak. "Ah, princess," she said, touching the girl's shoulder with her jeweled hand, "I told you I was a very foolish woman, and I am, but not so foolish as to offer advice often. Yet, believe me, it won't do. I think that is one of the greatest young men I ever knew, and it's a pity —but it won't do."

Miss Betty kept her face away from her guardian for a moment. No inconceivable amount of information had drifted to her from here and there regarding the career of Crailley Gray, and she thought how intensely she would have hated any person in the world except Mrs. Tanberry for presuming to think she needed to be warned against the charms of this serenading lady killer who was the property of another girl.

"You must keep him away, I think," ventured Mrs. Tanberry gently.

At that Betty turned to her and said sharply:

"I will. After this please let us never speak of him again."

A slow nod of the other's turbaned head indicated the gravest acquiescence. She saw that her companion's cheeks were still crimson. "I understand," said she.

reputation, the town Lathario and light-of-love, under promise of marriage to Fanchion Barwood, had tried to make love to another girl, and now his sward-like in trying to disclaim what he had done lent him the insolence to say to this other: "My child, you are betrayed by your youth and conceit; you exaggerate my meaning. I had no intention to distinguish you by competing with you!" This was her interpretation of him, and her indignation was not lessened by the inevitable conclusion that no one who had been through so many scenes with women, severely found her simplicity diverting. Miss Betty had a little of her father in her, while it was part of her youth, too, that of all things she could least endure the shadow of a smile at her own expense.

"Oh, oh," she cried, her voice shaking with anger. "I suppose your heart is half choked with your laughter at me."

She turned from him swiftly and left him.

Almost running, she entered the house and hurried to a seat by Mrs. Tanberry, pestling to her like a young sapling on a hillside. Instantaneously several gentlemen who had hastily acquitted themselves of various obligations in order to seek her sprang forward with good greetings, so that when the stricken Tom, dazed and confounded by his evil luck, followed her at about five paces he found himself confronted by an impenetrable abutment formed by the spiked tails of the coats of General Trumble, Madrilion, Tappachung Marsh, Cummings and Jefferson Bar-wood. Within this fortification rang out laughter and sally from Miss Carewe. Her color was high, and her eyes sparkled never more brightly.

Flourish and alarm sounded for a quadrille. Each of the serenade, firmly elbowing his neighbor, begged the dance of Miss Betty, but Tom was himself again and laid a long, strong hand on Madrilion's shoulder, pressed him gently aside and said:

"Forgive me, Miss Carewe has honored me by the promise of this quadrille."

He bowed, offering his arm, and none of them was too vain to envy that bow and gesture.

For a moment he remained waiting.
Miss Carewe rose slowly and, directly facing him, said in composed and even voice, "You force me to beg you never to address me again."

She placed her hand on the general's arm, turning her back squarely upon Tom.

In addition to those who heard, many persons in that part of the room saw the affront and paused in arrested attitudes. Others, observing these, turned inquiringly, so that sudden silence fell, broken only by the voice of Miss Betty as she moved away, talking cheerily to the general. Tom was left standing alone in the broken semi-circle.

All the eyes swept from her to him and back. Then every one began to talk hastily about nothing. The young man's humiliation was public.

He went to the door under cover of the movement of the various couples to find places in the quadrille, yet every sidelong glance in the room still rested upon him, and he knew it. He remained in the hall alone through that dance and at its conclusion walked slowly through the rooms, speaking to people here and there as though nothing had happened, but when the music sounded again he went to the dressing room, found his hat and cloak and left

"You force me to beg you never to address me again."

the house. For awhile he stood on the opposite side of the street, watching the lighted windows, and twice he caught sight of the blue and white brocade, the dark hair and the wreath of marguerites. Then, with a hot pal-p in his breast and the step of a gran-dier, he marched down the street.

Eyes and Animals.

Dr. Lindsay Johnson, the celebrated ophthalmologist, says that the dog has two ancestors, one round eyed, the other oval eyed. The first is the hyena, the second the bear, through the raccoon. All dogs descend from these animals. "The corpus niger," or black body of pigment in the eye of the horse, which has puzzled veterinarians, naturalists and zoologists so much, provides through the ophthalmos-cope a new means of tracing the ancestry and relationship of the horse. It is the same eye curtain that is found in tropical animals—the onager, the camel and the antelope—for protection from sunlight.

FRIDAY, MARCH. 16.

The regular session of the legislature adjourned Tuesday night at 12 o'clock, but was called to meet in extra session on Wednesday at noon to pass a rectifier's law and also to pass a law enlarging the powers of revenue agents.

The legislature passed the Revenue and Taxation bill on the last day of its session which increases the taxes considerably. This legislature also created several new offices and increased the annual expenditures of the State many thousands of dollars. It is up to the taxpayer to ask whether a public office in Kentucky is a public trust or a private snap.

Governor Beckham on Saturday forwarded to the Senate the names of General Percy Haley, of Frankfort; Dr. Milton Board, of Hopkinsville, and Judge D. B. Redwine, of Jackson, as members of the Board of Control, to have charge of the State Insane Asylums and charitable institutions under the law just enacted by the General Assembly. The compensation of each member will be $2,500 a year and his necessary traveling expenses.

The bill before the present Legislature regarding land titles in Eastern Kentucky affects Breathitt county probably more than any other county in the State, and we hope that some bill will be passed to help clear the titles in this county. All of Eastern Kentucky needs some law to make property secure under some title without any fear of lawsuits, but to have it done at one session of our lawmakers by men of whom but few are familiar with the complications is asking too much and really doing more harm than good.

Breathitt county is covered probably three times by patents. Virginia and Kentucky patents conflict in many parts it; senior and junior Kentucky grants conflict. We believe the Court of Appeals have never had a fair or good understanding of the extent of this trouble.

Now, our idea of the manner in which to form a law to, for once and all, overcome, to a great extent, if not entirely, the complications which exist and to make titles more secure would be to have a commission consisting of three of the best land lawyers in Eastern Kentucky, Virginia or West Virginia appointed to investigate the matter. Have them spend at least two years in their investigation and make a report to the next General Assembly following their appointment and if there is any way to overcome the great volume of litigation brought about by the lapping of these grants and the attempts of holders of almost worthless titles to require people to pay more than once for their property, then this committee would be able to point out the way. We believe the matter requires the careful study of the best lawyers.

James Stanfield, superintendent of the K. & P. Lumber Co., at Le Rose, Owsley county, was here Tuesday in search of timber cutters. He informed us that it would take at least ten years to finish cutting their timber in that section. See advertisement in another column.

Charles N. Cope, son of T. T. Cope, was licensed to practice law in the courts of Perry county at Hazard last week.

Wesley Turner, Sr., of Canoe, was here Monday.

WHEN I WAS A KID.

When I was a kid I served a term As a roustabout with the Lexington Herald firm.

I washed the rollers and I mopped the floor, And I put the dirty water o'er the sanctum door.

I balanced the pail so carefuller, They gave me the ruler where it hadn't ought to be.

P. S.—The Boss bought a new suit.

I put a pillow beneath my vest,
And somewhere else—you may guess the rest.

I pulled the proofs on the old hand press And I mixed the "takes" in a lovely mess,

I mixed them up so fine and free They dusted my clothes quite thoroughlee.

P. S.—The foreman also dealt me a hand or two. Clubs trumps.
In course of time I learned the case;

Each little type in its place.
The very first time I filled my hand

I threw it in to beat the band.
I filled that primer case so quick

I made all former records sick.
P. S.—It was eight point at that, too.

I turned the hand press and I wrapped the mail, I dumped the paste in the old lye pail.

I washed the forms when the run was through,
And I rinsed them off with liquid glue,

Oh, I rinsed them off so thoroughlee The foreman spent a week looking for me.

P. S.—The printers threw the type in with a hammer.

They showed me the type lice in the face, They sent me for an 'Italic space.

I found it on a beer glass rack,
And brought it back in a canvass sack.

I threw the sack upon the floor,
And then bolted out and locked the door.

P. S.—Oh, yes, I forgot. It was a hornet's nest.

Now, printer devils, all; you may take it from me,

Forget your past, resplendent though it be,
And drive it out of your memoree.

Forget your past when you lay it away For you may be foreman of THE BREATHITT COUNTY NEWS some day.

P. S.—Capital punishment of devils is discouraged.

A special from Campton under date of March 10 says:

B. H. Tutt, aged eighteen years, son of S. M. Tutt, who was cut on January 15, by George Dykes, died Saturday evening. The sheriff, with a posse, left immediately for Neola, the home of Dykes, to arrest him on the charge of murder. At the time of the trouble between Tutt and Dykes, Dykes was here attending court to answer the charge of killing Andy Wilson, the leader of the Wilson side in the Wilson-Dykes feud. Since the cutting of Tutt, the Dykes have been arrested and held under a bond on the charge of shooting and wounding Green Patrick, a witness for the Commonwealth against them in the feud case. Two men have been killed and four wounded in the Wilson-Dykes feud.

CHEAPER FARM LAND.

Southwest Offers Best Opportunities for Securing Homes.

Many farmers in the Northern and Eastern states are selling their high priced lands and locating in the Southwest. Many who have been unable to own their homes in the older country are buying land in the new country.

Unusual opportunities exist along the lines of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain Route. The rich, alluvial, delta lands and river bottom lands of Southeast Missouri Eastern Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, capable of producing 60 bushels of corn, a bale of cotton, 4 to 6 tons of alfalfa, 150 bushels of potatoes, and other grains, vegetables and hay crops, can be bought for $7.50 to $15.00 per acre. When cleared and slightly improved will rent for $4.00 to $6.00 per acre cash.

Roy V. Hennen, of Morgantown, W. Va., is visiting Attorney Martin T. Kelly this week. Mr. Hennen is assistant geologist of West Virginia, and is taking a look at the resources of Eastern Kentucky. He is considered one of the best of the younger school of geologists in the United States, and is especially well-known in his reports of the coal, oil and gas fields of West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania. His map of West Virginia can be found in many of the offices of Jackson.

A new narrow gauge railroad with passenger accommodations has been built from Natural Bridge to a point within four and one-half miles of Campton by Floyd Day and John C. M. Day. They intend to complete the road on to Campton in the early spring and the grading for the balance of the road will begin just as soon as the weather will admit. This road will be a great convenience to those who want to visit the Campton oil fields, as the dirt roads from Torment to Campton are now well nigh impassable. We hope the Day Bros. who are behind this enterprise and who have done so much for that section will reap the reward to which they are so justly entitled.

The four-year-old son of John H. Blanton was seriously injured Wednesday evening by a tree falling on him near his home at Lambrie. He had gone to the woods where trees were being cut for saw logs by his father and some hands and was not discovered until after he had been hurt. Drs. Hog and Swango were called and left here Wednesday night, but as the scene of the accident is about twenty miles from here we have not heard anything further. Mr. Blanton is the Assessor of this county and it is to be hoped that his child may recover.

In Honor of "Mr. Bob."

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Henry gave a very delightful dinner at their beautiful home, "Glen Eyrie," last Thursday evening. Miss Margaret Denham being the guest of honor. The table was decorated with American Beauty roses and silver candelabra, and in all it was a most enjoyable occasion. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Gorton, Misses Denham, Reese and Osborne, and Messrs. Wright Kelly and Vitz.

The Powers Case.

Caleb Powers will be tried again in the Kentucky courts. The Supreme Court, in an opinion by Justice Harlan, Monday, at Washington, held that the case could not be transferred to the Federal Court upon the grounds set forth by the defendant, and the State was awarded custody of the prisoner. Justice Harlan, in discussing the case, indicated that it might yet come before the Federal Court after the final decision of the Kentucky courts had been rendered. Powers has been tried three times by the circuit court of Scott county and each time found guilty, once receiving a sentence to death and twice a sentence of life imprisonment, but the Kentucky Court of Appeals interfered in each instance to prevent the execution.

Will Be Tried in Lee County.

Circuit Court convened here last Monday with special Judge J. L. Dorsey, of Henderson, on the bench. The only business before the court was the hearing of a motion for a change of venue in the cases of the Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Hargis, Callahan & Co. The Judge announced that he would at once begin the hearing of testimony on the motion and that fifteen witnesses would be heard on each side. The Commonwealth proved by all their witnesses that they did not think it probable that a jury could be selected in this county in the usual way that juries are selected that would be able to give both the Commonwealth and defense a fair and impartial trial and many of the witnesses thought most of the men qualified for jury service had formed or expressed an opinion in the case and would therefore be disqualified. Some of the defense witnesses were of the same opinion. On the conclusion of the testimony the case was argued by J. J. C. Back and Judge Blanton for the defense and by A. F. Byrd for the prosecution.

The court announced his opinion that he believed that neither side could get a fair and impartial trial in this county and ordered a change of venue and asked the counsel on both sides to try to agree where the case should be sent. But no county in the State seemed to suit both sides. The prosecution announced that they were willing that the case should go to any county in the State that had any railroad connection so their witnesses could attend, except the county of Lee. The defense selected Elliott county or Knott county or Morgan county, but the prosecution objected on the ground that these places were almost inaccessible in the winter months on account of the bad condition of the roads, as neither of the places had any railroad communications. The court finally decided on Lee county and ordered the cases moved to that county for trial.

The defendants were allowed bail in the sum of $10,000 each, which they gave.

The removal of these cases is a great relief to Breathitt county, as her dockets are already crowded and it will give our circuit judge a chance to clear them up. It will also remove the scene of excitement from among us and give our people a chance to attend to their business pursuits and to forget as much as possible all their old troubles and unpleasantness. We hope the people of Lee county will treat both sides with such fairness and impartiality that neither side will have any just cause for complaint.

MRS. MARCUM'S STATEMENT.

JACKSON, Ky., March 10.—In regard to the order of Judge Dorsey in allowing bail to James Hargis and others charged with the murder of J. B. Marcum, the following statement has been given out by Mrs. Marcum:

"I notice in the columns of the Lexington Herald of March 8 an inquiry from certain citizens of Anderson county as to why Judge Dorsey allowed bail to James Hargis and others charged with the murder of my husband, in advance of the motion for bail before the motion for change of venue was settled. Judge Dorsey gives as his reason for granting bail, that the jail was not in a sanitary condition and that it would probably impair the health of the prisoners. Witnesses were introduced, both by the defendants and by the Commonwealth, to prove the condition of the jail and the number of persons confined. The proof showed that it was not a very pleasant and agreeable place, but that it was in as good condition as jails are ordinarily kept in.

"The jail, I understand, was in a better condition than when turned over by the Hargis administration to Jailer Little on the first day of January, and no other prisoners had heretofore been admitted to bail, so far as I know, on account of the sanitary conditions of the jail, nor the numbers confined. The prisoners confined at the same time with Judge Hargis were charged with sundry crimes, such as liquor selling and other penal offenses, and no leniency was asked for nor offered to any of these. I make no complaint against the order of Judge Dorsey if he believed that he was discharging his duty in so doing, but it is to be borne in mind that the man whom these prisoners are charged with killing was taken without a word of warning, and he has never been given emancipation nor liberty from the eternal confinement into which he was consigned. It may be the custom of courts to allow temporary bail, regardless of the enormity of the crime alleged, yet there seems, so far as I know, to be no justification for such action under the law. Personally, I was very much impressed with Judge Dorsey as being a gentleman of the highest type and a lawyer of ability, and the same impression was made upon the people of Jackson, so far as I have heard.

"The motion which comes up before Judge Dorsey on next Monday for change of venue, alleges that such a state of lawlessness exists in the county that a fair trial cannot be had, together with various other reasons. It is not meant that such lawlessness exists that jurors will be resorted to, but that the Commonwealth can not have a fair trial on account of the fact that there is no competent jury in this county and in the counties adjacent. I believe that all the good citizens of this section have already formed and expressed their opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendants and should these be summoned should be discharged on that account.

"Another obstacle in the way of having the trial in this county would be the fact that the defendants would probably object to the present sheriff acting in the trials of the cases, and an elisor would have to be appointed. The court being a stranger and therefore not knowing anything about the proper men for such work, would be liable to select some one altogether prejudicial to one side or the other and thereby preclude an impartial and fair trial. Justice is what I want at the hands of those in authority, and I hope that the court charged with the administration of justice in this case will grant a fair and impartial hearing.

"When my husband was being pursued by the vile wretches who sought his life, and when it became apparent that the awful plot was formed to take his life, I promised him that I would spare nothing in prosecuting his slayers if they should succeed. This I have done in a feeble way, and this I will continue to do so long as power and strength are given me for such arduous and trying duty.

"I feel that the men charged with this crime are entitled to no more favors at the hands of justice than any other men charged with a similarly grave offense."

A great many railroad ties have been brought down during the last few days, which were sold at good prices.

Well Worth Trying.
W. H. Brown, the popular pension attorney, of Pittsfield, Vt., says: "Next to a pension the best thing to get is Dr. King's New Life Pills." He writes: "They keep my family in splendid health." Quick cure for headache, constipation and biliousness. 25¢ Guaranteed at Jackson Drug Co.

1900 Calendar For 1906.
Do you throw away your old calendars? A Paris statistician has discovered that it is a mistake to do so, and being of an economical turn of mind, has discovered further that calendars for 1900 will serve equally well for 1906. As a rule, of course, a calendar is only of use eleven years later and leap year upsets this calculation pretty often. But as 1900 was allotted 365 days of, instead of 366, the days of the 1906 week fit exactly those of 1900.—London Express.

The Breath of Life.
It is a significant fact that the strongest animal of its size, the gorilla, also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs means powerful creatures flow to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chief study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stephens, of Port Williams, O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. O, its grand for throat and lung troubles." Guaranteed by the Jackson Drug Co. Price 50¢ and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

The Term Sued Him.
The late J. Warren Bigelow, for many years a prominent member of the Worcester county board of commissioners, was fond of relating this story:
One winter day a man stood in front of a store where men's shirts were displayed. A few were hung outside, and one particularly took his fancy. Without waiting to inquire the price, he seized it and started down the street.
The dealer happened to see him and immediately gave chase. Seeing that the thief outran him, he cried out, "Well, if I don't get the pay in this world I shall in the world to come!"
"Oh," called back the man with the shirt, "if you want to wait till then I'll take another shirt!"—Boston Herald.

A Chicago Alderman Owes His Election to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
"I can heartily and conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for affections of the throat and lungs," says Hon. John Shenick, 23rd St. Precinct, Chicago. "Two years ago during a political campaign, I caught cold after being overheated, which irritated my throat and I was finally compelled to stop, as I could not speak aloud. In my extremity a friend advised me to use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I took two doses that afternoon and could not believe my senses when I found the next morning the inflammation had largely subsided. I took several doses that day kept right on talking through the campaign and I thank this medicine that I won my seat in the council." This remedy is for sale by Jackson Drug Co.

When Lightning Strikes a Tree.
Professor Atkinson, an expert in electricity, is authority for the theory that it is not so much the mechanical force exerted by a lightning stroke that tears a tree to atoms as the explosive force caused by the sudden conversion of the fluids in the tree to gases. The heat of the lightning vaporizes the fluids, and the expansion is so violent that the tree is rent into fragments.

Champion Liniment for Rheumatism.
Chas. Drake, a mail carrier at Chapinville, Conn., says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the champion of all liniments. The past year I was troubled a great deal with rheumatism in my shoulder. After trying several cures the storekeeper here recommended this remedy and it completely cured me." There is no use of anyone suffering from that painful ailment when this liniment can be obtained for a small sum. One application gives prompt relief and its continued use for a short time will produce a permanent cure. For sale by Jackson Drug Company.

Mark Twain's Toast.
Mark Twain, who celebrated his seventieth birthday not long ago, is still able to enjoy life with the zest of a Peter Pan, nor has he apparently forgotten the delights of stolen sweets, for the other day when temperance organizations were under discussion his contribution to the debate—and whether he spoke for or against he left his audience to decide, as the true humorist always does—was this brief remark: "Taking the pledge will not make bad liquor good, but it will improve it."—New York Tribune.

Do Not Be Imposed Upon.
Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. These worthless imitations have similar sounding names. Beware of them. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar is in a yellow package. Ask for it and refuse any substitute. It is the best remedy for coughs or colds. Jackson Drug Company.

G. B. Burhans' Testifies After Four Years.

G. B. Burhans, of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble. Mark Twain's Toast.
Mark Twain, who celebrated his seventieth birthday not long ago, is still able to enjoy life with the zest of a Peter Pan, nor has he apparently forgotten the delights of stolen sweets, for the other day when temperance organizations were under discussion his contribution to the debate—and whether he spoke for or against he left his audience to decide, as the true humorist always does—was this brief remark: "Taking the pledge will not make bad liquor good, but it will improve it."—New York Tribune.

Best health tonic on earth. 50¢ Guaranteed by the Jackson Drug Co.

New Inlet to Alaskan Goldfields.
The building of the Alaska Central railroad from Seward is proving to be an encouragement to prospectors to explore the country along its route. This has resulted in the location of several gold bearing quartz claims in the vicinity of Kenai lake, some twenty miles from the town of Seward. Several very fine specimens of quartz showing free gold were brought out from this section late in the season, and the probabilities are that some systematic development will be attempted this year.—W. M. Brewer in Engineering Magazine.

One would think the excessive idea in a cough syrup should have been advanced long before it was. It seems the only rational remedy for coughs and colds would be to move the bowels and clean the mucous membranes of the throat and lungs at the same time. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar does this. It is the original Laxative Cough Syrup, the best known remedy for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. Tastes good and is harmless. Sold by the Jackson Drug Co.
